The Stars and Stripes

Floating Above the Administration Building of the Soldiers' Home, Washington, D. C.

The President General's Message

As the Flag Goes By!

What do you see as the Flag goes by?
What does it mean to you?
Its symbols speak of the stars of heaven
And those who are tried and true;
Of freedom won by the dauntless brave,
And honor reflected in blue.

We stand in Constitution Hall with hands on hearts, silently pledging ourselves to follow the path blazed by the Stars and Stripes while from the roof above unfurls a glorious Flag which floats sublimely over all. In every heart is consciousness of protection, of blessing and of direction. As we catch its message we know that we, too, are pledged to carry on, that its promise to mankind shall not fail. Freedom, opportunity and justice shall be for all! We set for ourselves anew tasks which will brighten its stars of hope, and deepen its field of blue; sacrifice and truth to enrich its stripes and courage to meet any foe.

Deep gratitude is ours for the privileges of this land and pride in the vision bequeathed us. We have chosen our work, our ways are many. All lead to better citizenship, a happier nation. Privileges bring responsibilities and these are ours.

June 14th is Flag Day. It will be observed with reverence and devotion—this day which commemorates the birth of our Flag, the symbol of our nation! I beseech you each one to make this day one of rededication, one of definite plan for service, one of acceptance of your personal responsibility, without which privilege must cease and hope be abandoned. Our faith must cost us something in daily living. You know what your contribution may be.

We are members of a great Society dedicated to the service of our country. Many are waiting to be led, many who see not, who hope not, who believe not. Can we fail our Standard by standing idly by, enjoying the life it has given us?

We who are responsible for the citizen of tomorrow, what do we know of his ideals, of his education today, of his training in character, and faith toward God? What are we doing to answer the doubts and confusion and to illuminate the way?

Vision must be ours; knowledge and faith go hand in hand; patience and a will to understand and to serve.

The world is ready for a great spiritual awakening. None other can lead the nations. May your Flag and all that it symbolizes of spirit and humanity ever waken anew your sense of responsibility and devotion and may the vision remain with you always.

Our Real Granddaughters

ALOHA CHAPTER in far away Hawaii has a Real Granddaughter—Miss Mary Burbank whose grandfather, Eleazer Burbank became a fifer in the company of his father, Captain Silas Burbank, at the age of eleven. Miss Burbank was born in Cherryfield, Washington County, Maine, the daughter of Samuel Burbank and his wife Mary Abigail Morse. Samuel was a son of Eleazer Burbank and his wife Mary Brackett. Captain Silas Burbank lived with his family in what is now Scarborough, Maine, but at that time, of course, was a part of the Massachusetts Colony. When news of the war reached him, he organized a company at once and took his two sons with him. The elder, David was thirteen years old. He played the drum and Eleazer played the fife.

Minneapolis Chapter, Minnesota is very proud of their non-resident member, Mrs. Clara Kern Bayliss, daughter of Manasseh Kern, and granddaughter of Nicholas Kern, the "Boy Patriot" of the American Revolution. Nicholas was born in Egypt, White-hall Township, Pennsylvania. As a boy of eleven years, and the oldest son at home (his three older brothers were in the War), he was sent with a load of grain to market in Philadelphia. He, with his wagon and team, was drafted to carry the wounded from Allentown to Philadelphia. His son Manassah Kern, born 1809 came to Detroit, Michigan where in 1840 he married Caroline Burrell Harlan. Clara, their fourth daughter, was born in 1848 on their beautiful, wooded farm in Porter Township, Van Buren County, Michigan. She had always fostered three ambitions: to write a book; to see the ocean; and to paint a picture; all of which she has accomplished. She organized the General Macomb Chapter of Illinois, and served as its first regent.

General Francis Marion Chapter, Indiana includes among its members Mary Emma Priest Renbarger, a granddaughter of Jeremiah Priest who fought in the Revolutionary army, first in the Massachusetts Militia until January 1777 and second, in the troops from Culpeper County, Virginia until 1787. After the close of the Revolution, he married Millie Gardner and moved to Clark County, Ohio. Mrs. Renbarger, the daughter of John, the youngest son of Jeremiah Priest, and Sussannah Dunn was born in Ohio on the farm settled by her grandfather, and owned by her father at the time of her birth. Upon the death of her father, her mother returned to Grant County, Indiana, her former home, and bought a farm which adjoined the last Miami Indiana reservation in Indiana, and overlooks the site of the Mississnewa battle ground, the scene of the battle fought on December 18, 1812. Mrs. Renbarger's present home is located on the beautiful and historic Frances Slocum Trial.

Pelican Chapter, Louisiana has an Honorary Member, Mrs. Ida Hill Goodwill, and a member, Mrs. Hattie Phillips Shepherd who both enjoy the distinction of being Real Granddaughters.

Mrs. Goodwill's grandfather, Nathaniel Hill of Shrewsbury Massachusetts served as a sergeant in Captain Nahum Ward's Company. After the Revolution, he married Elizabeth Goodrich of Pittsfield, Massachusetts and they moved to Onondaga County, New York. Not long after the birth of their son Ezra, Mrs. Hill died. This child was reared by his uncle, Captain Caleb Goodrich of Pittsfield who became very incensed with Nathaniel Hill when he remarried. The outcome of the quarrel was that Nathaniel moved to Canada where he raised a large family several of whom returned to the United States when they grew up. The city of Woodstock, in the Province of Ontario is built on the site of Nathaniel's plantation, in the midst of his groves of sugar maple trees. Nathaniel lived to be one hundred and eight years old. His oldest son, Ezra joined the army in the War of 1812 and then went south, where he prospered. He married Olive Pridgeon of Georgia, eloping with her to Alabama. They finally settled in the little town of Harrisonburg, on the Ouachita River in Louisiana where Ida Hill Goodwill was born October 4, 1838. In 1840 the family again moved, this time to South Arkansas. Mrs. Goodwill lived for more than fifty years in the little college town of Minden, Louisiana, but came to live with her daughter in Shreveport, Louisiana nearly a dozen years ago. She was active in civic and fraternal organizations until her lack of strength due to advanced years made it impossible.

Mrs. Hattie Phillips Shepherd, the other Real Granddaughter in Pelican Chapter joined the Society by right of descent from George Phillips, who was born in Virginia 1758 and died in Georgia, 1849. George Phillips served in the capacity of private in Captain Samuel Jordon Cabell's Company, Sixth Virginia Regiment, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel James Hendricks during the Revolution. He married Sarah Lovell, born 1770, in 1790. Mrs. Shepherd is the daughter of Lanza Lott Phillips, son of George, and his wife Ann R. Mapp whom he married in 1852. He was born in 1817 and died in 1872. Mrs. Shepherd became a member of the Society in 1910 and has represented the chapter at twenty-six Continental Congresses.

William Gaston Chapter, North Carolina has one of the youngest Real Granddaughters on its rolls—Mrs. Kathleen Rankin Moore who was born February 25, 1880, at the ancestral Rankin home in Gaston County, N. C. She is the daughter of Richard Rankin and Delia Bisaner Rankin who were married March 23, 1875. Delia Bisaner was a great-granddaughter of Robert Kerr, a soldier of the Revolution. Richard Rankin was a son of William Rankin and his wife Mary Moore Campbell. William Rankin was born in Chester County, Pennsylvania, January 10, 1761. About 1763 his parents joined the migration to the South. They settled in Tryon County, North Carolina, in that part which later became Gaston County. He served first as a private in Captain Robert Alexander's Company, Colonel William Graham's Regiment. In 1779 he volunteered under the same officer and marched to the relief of Charleston. He served under various other officers after that. He and his wife are buried in Goshen Graveyard, Gaston County. The restoration of the wall and the marking of this graveyard is a project of the William Gaston Chapter.

Samuel Grant Chapter, Maine has a Real Granddaughter, Mrs. Clara Isabel Emerson whose aunt, the late Mrs. Harriet Collins Moore was the only Real Daughter the chapter has had in its membership. Mrs. Emerson was born January 12, 1846, the daughter of Charles and Eliza Tarbox Collins. Her paternal grandfather, Joseph Collins was born in Gloucester, Massachusetts, December 6, 1748. He served as a private in Captain Nathan Merrill's company under Colonel Jonathan Mitchell whose detachment of militia marched from home, July 8, 1779 and was discharged September 25, 1779. The Company was raised in Cumberland County for service on the Penobscot expedition. Mr. Collins later came to Farmingdale, Maine and lived and died there. In spite of her years, Mrs. Emerson is still fond of gardening, and enjoys the occupation in the home of her daughter in Gardiner, Maine.

Dorothy Brewer Chapter, Massachusetts has a member, Elvira Jacobs Parsons whose grandfather, Daniel Morrill V, and great-grandfather, Daniel Morrill IV, both fought in the Revolution. Her grandfather first enlisted as a guard at Winter Hill, beginning November 10, 1777. Ann Morrill, daughter of young Daniel married James Jacobs who was also of revolutionary ancestry. Elvira, one of their twelve children, married John Parsons of West Minot, Maine and had four children. Mrs. Parsons has always been interested in church work, and was for many years a member of the Women's Club of Waltham. She was born in Freeman, Maine, November 13, 1839 and can recount a wealth of historical information acquired during her long life.

Molly Reid Chapter, New Hampshire is proud to number among its members, Julia Hopkins Greenough, granddaughter of Joseph Hopkins who served six terms of enlistment in the Revolutionary army, his first, a month before his sixteenth birthday, and his sixth in his twentieth year. Joseph Hopkins and his second wife, Martha (Patty) Crooker had a son Ebenezer Sumner Hopkins who became the father of Mrs. Greenough. He and his brother and two sisters, Real Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution were frequent visitors in Derry, after Mrs. Greenough came there to live.

Robert Morris Chapter, Pennsylvania has a Charter Member Abbie B. Holden, a descendant of several revolutionary soldiers, among whom were Adolphus Eberhart, only son of the Duke of Alsace, and Nehemiah Holden, her grandfather. The latter was born in Farley, Orange County, Vermont in 1763. He enlisted in the Revolutionary Army in 1780, and served until the end of the war. His son Elnathan Holden was also born in Farley, Vermont, in 1817 and died at the age of ninety-three in Philadelphia, where he was an honored member of the Philadelphia Chapter S. A. R.

Chancellor Livingston Chapter, New York has a Real Granddaughter Jessie Phelps Cornelius who was born in Canada. Her grandfather was Joel Phelps, who was born in Wyoming Valley, Pennsylvania, 1753, and who died in Oakland, Wisconsin, February 27, 1838. He served in Captain Hard-ing's Company, and was wounded at Fort Jenkins. By his third wife, Hannah Baney, he had a son Joel, Jr., born 1800, who went to Canada as a boy to live with his uncles. His second wife was Anna Thornton who became the mother of Mrs. Cornelius. Mrs. Cornelius has always been one of the most active and interested members of the Chapter.

Mach-wi-hi-lusing Chapter, Pennsyl-vania has on its membership rolls, Alice Scouten Stroud, a granddaughter of Jacob Scouten who enlisted during the Revolution in the militia company under Captain Hall, Colonel Dickin-son's regiment at Springfield, New Jersey. He was born in Fishkill, Dutchess County, New York, January 25, 1755 and died April 7, 1842 in Burlington, Pennsylvania. His son Charles R. Scouten married Chloe Robinson, May 31, 1832 and their daughter, Alice Scouten, was born on May 18, 1853.

Book Review

KATHARINE CALVERT GOODWIN

A History of the Vice-Presidency of the United States. By Louis Clinton Hatch, Ph.D. Revised and edited by Professor Earl L. Shoup, Department of Political Science, Western Reserve University. 1934. The American Historical Society, Inc., New York. Price, $3.50.

Undoubtedly this book contains the greatest amount of data on the Vice-Presidency of the United States ever published in a single volume. It is a surprising fact that historians have heretofore given this subject scant attention, but a fortunate one that such eminent scholars as Dr. Hatch and Professor Shoup should have realized its interesting possibilities. This work, begun by Dr. Hatch in 1927, and uncompleted at his death five years later, fell into the able hands of Professor Shoup, who has faithfully and skillfully completed the plan of the original author.

This plan, by the way, involves a simple and intelligent division of the subject matter into two sections, the first being a study of the various aspects of the office of Vice-President, including its origin and functions. It explains why the Constitutional Convention of 1787 created the office, and discusses, among other pertinent things, the oath and inauguration of the Vice-President, his ceremonial and social duties, and relations with the President—also the Presidency of the Senate, its rules of pro-cEDURE and the Vice-President's casting vote.

As for the inauguration, the simple, unostentatious example set by Jefferson in 1797 has usually been followed, the greatest deviation from earlier custom being the administering of the oath, which, up to 1861 was generally done by the President pro tempore of the Senate, but since then has been administered by the retiring Vice-President.

Part II is a chronological, historical study of Vice-Presidential nominations and elections, beginning with John Adams and the first election under the new Constitu-tion in 1788, through the 145 years of our Republic to 1932, with John Nance Garner as Thirty-Second Vice-President. This second section comprises by far the greatest portion of the volume, with its long line of Vice-Presidents, Vice-Presidential nominees, and would-be candidates for nomination.

Well prepared, well written, and well worth reading, it is confidently commended as a fine piece of historical work that will live.

Louisiana State Capitol

LAURA LOGAN CARTER BAUGHMAN

State Regent

LOUISIANA State Capitol occupies the historic site of old Louisiana State University campus, commanding a superb view of the winding Mississippi River. The city of Baton Rouge is located on the first higher ground north of the mouth of the Father of Waters and the Capitol, crowning this hill, dominates the river as it sweeps in one of the longest curves in its entire course. It is surrounded by a park of magnificent trees, some dating back to the early days of Spanish domain, while the latest addition, taking their proper place in the panorama of Louisiana history, are the two baby Live Oaks planted February 22, 1932, by the Baton Rouge Chapter of the D. A. R.

Senator Huey P. Long, when Governor of Louisiana, visioned a Capitol majestic, in keeping with the glory of Louisiana's ancestral heritage; modern, convenient, suited to the increasing needs of Louisiana's future. The contract for its construction was let January 1, 1931. As finished every detail is alive with the patriotic, romantic and industrial history of the great state, where France, Spain, England and the United States fought and bartered for possession of a vast empire.

The classic beauty of this most modern architecturally perfect structure which raises its white shaft to Louisiana's Blue Heavens and whose grandeur is mirrored in the limpid waters of University Lake, is united in a pleasing harmony with the perfection of every modern equipment.

From the ground to the tip of the shaft encompasses a height of 450 feet, comprising thirty-four stories with 249,000 square feet or nearly six acres of usable floor space. The two tall groups of statutory—"The Patriots" and "The Pioneers"—placed upon the top buttresses of the entrance steps were modeled by Lorado Taft. The official door to Louisiana's State House is nearly 50 feet high, and shows architrave by Lee Lawrie, picturing the industries and resources of modern Louisiana.

The historic and symbolic record of the state is chronicled in sculpture and in color in the famed Memorial Hall, flanked at either end by the state's legislative chambers. The ceiling is the artist's interpretation of Louisiana's glorious ancestry. On a field of golden oak leaves and red acorns he has emblazoned the emblem of each nation to which the state paid allegiance. They tell a story all their own and they "speak a various language." Most beloved and familiar of all is the seal of the United States—an eagle with a shield of red, white and blue. Then Louisiana speaks for herself. Her own seal adorns each end of this historic ceiling—the Pelican sacrificing her life's blood to feed her young, signifies the great state of Louisiana.

The above is but a brief outline of the central floor of the capitol of Louisiana. There is too much beauty inscribed therein to be mentioned—except in fractional and fragmental parts—outside a volume, an entire chapter of which might be devoted to the Ulric H. Ellerhusen frieze on the exterior of the building, which is also reproduced in Memorial Hall in gold, telling the historic story of Louisiana.

Memorial Hall is Louisiana's hall of fame. It forms a setting of beauty, dignity and inspiration for the state's proud heritage—from the American Indian, France, Spain, the United States of America—and in a pleasing harmony it breathes the mingling of tradition, romance and vitality that is Louisiana.

SALLY ROWBOTHAM

State Regent

Author "Virginia's Historic Trees," an illustrated brochure published by the Virginia D. A. R.; Ex-Vice-Chairman of the National Committee on Historic Trees

ONLY the whispering of the trees—Virginia's trees—to tell their brief story. Arlington and Babylon—our first stop going south—a willow! The story goes that a British officer in Revolutionary days brought a twig, shipped to England in a package of dates from Babylon, to plant on the grant he expected to receive from his king. His dream vanished; the twig was given to his friend John Custis, Washington's stepson, and here's the tree, the possible sire of many of America's willows.

Southward bound—Mount Vernon—Washington's trees and box—then, noting as we pass the giant sycamore at the restored grist mill, we find ourselves on U. S. Route 1, and behind us Falls Churchyard with its magnificent 300-year-old Tulip tree—the iron ring bedded in its bole to which George, when he was vestryman, is supposed to have tethered his horse.

Fredericksburg—that chestnut which whispers, "I'm the only one left of the 13 that George planted, but Dr. Davey has recently taken good care of me." Mathew Fontaine Maury's home in the troubrous 1860's; a giant Black Walnut, its roots buried beneath the emerald of the lawn, stands, now as then, the protector of the family of "The Pathfinder of the Seas." Then away, across the river to Ferry Farm, where lived Mary Ball Washington and her son—George's hatchet! Did he cut down that cherry tree? An unanswerable legend—but, anyhow, here are "descendants"—shoots growing into new trees from the original "Truth Tree."

Wakefield—his birthplace, restored—one of the few memorials free of entrance charge. Would that some benefactor might open "everything to everybody!" A glorious riot of cedars stretching from mansion to river bank—picnic grounds—playgrounds—lovers and mothers and kiddies—plenty of shade.

A few miles further, Stratford, the former magnificent home of the Lees of Virginia, with handsome forest trees, and a Horse Chestnut planted by Robert E. Lee's mother; then, presently, across the Downing Bridge into old Rappahannock, on to Gloucester Point by ferry to old Yorktown. Gnarled, goblin-like Mulberry trees, brought by Governor Dudley Diggs in an attempt to establish a colonial silk industry, grin at the visitor; in the garden of the Nelson House, a tree planted by Lafayette. Trees around the Moore House; giant hollies bordering the highway as we reach Williamsburg.

What a mecca is this restored colonial capitol! The leaves are susurrant once more, and in the quiet churchyard suggest we see that huge Sycamore that has invaded the last resting place of the Rev. James Blair, founder of the College of William and Mary. Lifting the tombstone in its recurrent yearly growth it seems to be hastening the Day of Resurrection. At the end of Duke of York Street we find a bent old tree at the entrance to the college campus, this the last of its three original main branches. It is an original "line corner" shown on a map dated 1678. We must pause and look at the grotesque old Mulberry near Dinwiddie's temporary home of 1751, nor be heedless of the Martha Washington Yew, tucked away beneath the towering trees of the State Hospital, nearby a colonial brick kitchen, the last vestige of the Custis home where George proposed to the widow.

Jamestown—a giant Mulberry, one of America's largest, guarding the entrance to the island, and the erect Lone Sentinel Cypress standing watch at the upper end introduce us to the shady retreat beneath which our permanent settlement found its home. Walk quietly—write your own story of these banks of the James, for both sides of the river are lined with trees that "could a tale unfold" of struggles, Indian massacres and death that gave place to more abundant life.

Again a ferry, and on the Surry side we turn to the sea, to Willoughby Spit, and the majestic Willoughby Oak, 19 feet in girth with a 60-foot spread—a magnificent specimen, in perfect health, though a vigorous youngster when "Columbus sailed the ocean blue." Across the broad estuary are the Live Oaks of Fort Monroe, old enough to have enticed the Jamestown venturers to rest and settle there. Returning through Norfolk we pay patriotic tribute at "The Memorial Oak," a very magnificent tree selected as the inscription tells

"As a Memorial to the Sons of Norfolk Who Died for Their Country in the World War."

Petersburg—the avenue of giant box, 50 feet tall, where Lafayette had temporary headquarters. Petersburg—the Crater! Forts Hell and Damnation! One may still pick up bullets spent in the internecine strife of seventy years ago. We leave this well-parked memorial ground, paying a moment's respect to a tree which announces, "Henry Clay spoke beneath my shade."

Now where? Through Richmond's arboretum surrounding the capitol, into the heart of Virginia—Charlottesville—Albermarle County—the homes of the Great Realtors—the purchaser of Louisiana, the greatest real estate event of modern time—another who bought Florida—and those whose far-reaching hands secured the Northwest—the homes of Jefferson, Monroe, Madison, Clark, and Meriwether Lewis!

In the town stands Tarleton's Oak, where he camped enroute to capture the Legislature and Jefferson at Monticello, but was frustrated by Jack Jouett's ride. Monticello, revealing Jefferson's trees and shrubs, many imported from England and France, and among others the two Lindens preserved by the Garden Club of Virginia; and that stunning Purple Beech! At the foot of the mountain lies Shadwell, Peter Jefferson's homestead, with its one remaining tree of an avenue set out by his son, young Thomas, on his coming of age. In the distance is Ashlawn, Monroe's home, well worth a visit—luxurious box and a giant Norway Pine planted by Monroe himself. Then the campus of the University, one of the most attractive in the world—the Black Walnut on Monroe Hill adjacent to his office—trees, trees everywhere.

Through apple and peach orchards over Spotswood Trail, cutting across the Skyline Drive on the summit of the Blue Ridge, we slip down into the Valley of Virginia where we are greeted by the world's oldest Chinquapin tree, monarch of the woods, bearing mute testimony to Indian and colonial days, forty feet high with a ten-foot waist line, patiently standing on the old pike to Rawley Springs, not far from Harrisonburg.

We are now on the Lee Highway facing, as our fathers did, the "west"; but rest awhile to hear the tale of a 90-foot Sycamore whose 200 years have not impaired its memory.

"When the pioneer Presbyterians built their first church," it says, "the nearest sand suitable for mortar was at South River, seventeen miles away. There were no wagons, and the sand was brought by the women on horseback, attended by armed escorts, protection against the Indians. A Sycamore seed, unintentionally brought, took root in the remnant of a sand pile—and here I am."

Rev. Samuel Brown was minister of the congregation, and he married Mary Moore, which necessitates a side trip, ahead of our itinerary, into the Alleghanies and Tazewell County's Abb's Valley. We are standing by a spring looking at the Abb's Valley Apple tree (it celebrated its centennial with 100 bushels of fruit); it marks the home of James Moore who moved here from the locality of the graveyard Sycamore in 1775. This tree, a slip brought from the valley, saw the massacre of the settlers by a band of Shawnees under Black Wolf in 1786. Mary Moore, a daughter, and Martha Evans, living with the Moores, were captured by the Indians and taken to the Scioto Valley whence, after severe hardships, they found their way back to civilization. Later, Martha Evans's brother founded Evansville in Indiana.

However, our side trip has made another contribution—for who does not recall

"Sweet Alice Ben Bolt"? A huge Walnut marks the site of the home of William Wynne, Quaker, and a nearby fort built for protection against Indian raids. It was beneath this tree that Dr. Thomas Dunn English wrote the poem in 1842, a memoir of a pioneer love story.

Back again where we left off—Staunton, where the Legislature reassembled after Tarleton's raid, to visit Beverley Manor. At the foot of the steps of the house, built in the center of a grant to Sir William Beverley, is a rare White Mulberry, brought from England about 1750 by the governor. It is in a good state of preservation. A room in the old mansion, now owned by Mrs. W. W. King, is set aside as the meeting place of the Colonel Thomas Hughart Chapter.

"On to Lexington" and a glimpse of the only tree permitted on the Parade Ground of the Virginia Military Institute, "The Guard Tree," a Hickory, solitary and erect as a soldier on outpost. Beneath the out-spread trees of the adjoining Washington and Lee University the road passes the hallowed spot where Lee sleeps, and then on to the tree-bowered grave of his "right hand," Stonewall Jackson, whose statue is readily seen through the cemetery gates on Main Street.

Natural Bridge, where an unheralded and little-known competitor challenges all Cis-Pacific-Slope forestry to a test of longevity. Supported by Dr. Davy's estimate, this 90-foot Arbor Vitae tells us in as violent susurration as a tree can, "Before King John signed Magna Carta at Runne-medie I was nearly a century old!" Well may it be proud, not alone of its approximately 900 years, but of its well-preserved old age.

Still on Lee Highway we stop in Roanoke where on the bank of the river is an ancient Oak—"The Boundary Oak"—the sole survivor of many trees marking the original grant by King George II to James Alexander. This tree has been marked by the Colonial Dames. A few miles to the west, near Elliston, is another beautiful Oak, the last testament to an inn, no longer existing, frequently patronized by Andrew Jackson.

Abingdon—the Smoke Tree near the main portico of Martha Washington College said to have been brought by William Campbell Preston, an original settler and large landowner, from Napoleon's grave at St. Helena.

Our next experience is unique in that we are going indoors to find a forest tree. Do you recall schooldays and the picture of Daniel Boone carving the results of a bear hunt on a tree? Well, let's visit the Preston home and see what we shall see. And here it is—a section of a Beech, cut from a tree on the Preston estate just over the Virginia line, brought to their home in Abingdon and carefully housed. Here it is, just as Boone cut it with his hunting knife: "D. BOON KILLED A BAR."

Where Virginia gives ground to Tennessee, just over the border is the Pemberton Oak inscribed by Sycamore Shoals Chapter: "Under This Tree Colonel John Pemberton Mustered His Troops for the Battle of King's Mountain in 1781." And it is recorded that the soldiers of five wars have drilled in this vicinity.

Turning northward into the heart of the mountains we reach Big Stone Gap, the outlet to Kentucky, and recall a man whose ramblings in these hills brought vivid portrayal of its folk and folklore. Our last vista is a path that John Fox often roamed where a tall forest Pine at its margin bids "Good-bye, and come again," and we realize we are leaving Virginia by "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine."

Memorial Album of Revolutionary Soldiers

LUCILE CARY

Ex-State Regent

ONE of the most interesting and worthwhile activities sponsored by the Nebraska Daughters of the American Revolution has come to an end with the binding of three volumes of 100 photographs and biographical sketches of soldiers of the American Revolution. The books, bound in royal blue with lettering in gold, were presented to the D. A. R. Library in Constitution Hall, Washington, D. C.

In collecting these copies of historic pictures, the members thought to preserve them, together with the personal incidents of their lives, for future generations, each one growing further from the war for independence and those who carried it to victory. The volumes reveal the price paid in sacrifice by those early Americans. By placing them in the national archives, they are safe from fire and other destructive elements.

The pictures of the Revolutionary soldiers have been secured through the courtesy of the Nebraska State Historical Society by Mrs. C. S. Paine; the University of Nebraska library, through Gilbert Doane; the Fine Arts gallery, Yale University; the War Department; D. A. R. Magazines; old histories of the Revolution and county histories; from D. A. R. chapters and members in all parts of the country; and from others interested in the preservation of pictorial and biographical history.

The Librarian General has said that the volumes make a distinct contribution to Revolutionary history and form a valuable addition to the library.

These three volumes, compiled by Mrs. Benjamin G. Miller of Crete, give in summarized form the history of the Revolution. In the sketches enter practically every skirmish and battle of that war, many of them, in fact, not recorded in American histories. There is much in the personal experiences of those veterans giving their reactions on the struggle.

Many ancestors of Nebraska women are included. A hasty glimpse shows Lieutenant Richard Failley, born in 1740, a company commander at the Battle of Bunkerhill, and present when Burgoyne surrendered. The D. A. R. chapter of Osceola was named in honor of Lieutenant Failley, and its organizing regent was Mrs. Wesley Snider, a direct descendent of Richard Failley.

When Washington at Brandywine called for volunteers to spike the guns of a British battery that was throwing a devastating fire into the American ranks, Captain Robert Vance and twenty of his company rode forward. In successfully completing his duty, Vance's hat was shot full of holes, a part of his hair was taken off completely, and his coat was split from elbow to shoulder. This same captain, a Revolutionary ancestor of Mrs. Mary Johnston of Crete Chapter, and 400 volunteers under Alexander Hamilton stormed the redoubts at Yorktown that compelled the surrender of Cornwallis, and ended the war.

Daniel Frederick Bakeman was the great-grandfather of Mrs. Carrie Wertz of Bennett. His picture was taken when he was 104, five years before his death at Freedom, New York, in 1869, and he walked four miles to the photographer.

David Kinnison, who lived to be 115, was a member of the Boston Tea Party. He was one of seventeen residents of Lebanon who formed a club for secret meetings to deliberate upon grievances caused by England. In the end, they joined other clubs, formed for the same purpose, for the famous tea affair. The Isaac Rice picture is drawn from a pen sketch. He served a regular term in the army and on the field at Saratoga, but due to some documentary losses he lost his title to a pension.

Almost grown to manhood when the Revolution broke out, Jonathan Harrington played the fife as the boys were marshalled on the green on that fateful April day of the Battle of Lexington. John Jay employed Enoch Crosby as a spy, posing as an applicant to join the British army, going among Tory districts with Tory literature. When his disguise was penetrated finally, he joined the army as a private.

The American's Creed

THE American's Creed is a summing up, in exactly one hundred words, of the basic principles of American political faith. It is not an expression of individual opinion upon the obligations and duties of American citizenship or with respect to its rights and privileges. It is a summary of the fundamental principles of American political faith as set forth in its greatest documents, in its worthiest traditions, and by its greatest leaders.

I will first recite the American's Creed and then briefly comment upon and explain its component parts:

"I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people, whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a Republic; a Sovereign Nation of many sovereign States; a perfect Union, one and inseparable, established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

"I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its Constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies."

The United States of America is the official title of our country as given in the closing words of the Preamble or foreword to the Constitution. This term is used also in diplomatic correspondence with foreign nations and in the enacting clauses of bills brought before Congress, to wit:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled." The term is also found on the paper currency and on the coins of the Nation.

"A Government of the People, by the People, for the People." The idea here expressed is brought out in part in several historical documents and also by noted leaders; but it remained for the self-educated American, Abraham Lincoln, to give the thought its "final and perfect form in the Gettysburg Address." We believe it is best that all the people, rather than any one class or group, should have a voice in the choice and control of the government established for their own use and protection.

"Whose Just Powers Are Derived from the Consent of the Governed." This idea, and even the words themselves, date back to the beginning of this country, when the first English colony was founded in Virginia in 1627. This colony was different from all other European colonies in the New World in that it was founded and fostered by a number of men from among the people rather than by an autocratic ruler and his Court. It was this far-sighted group of people in the Old World who, over 300 years ago, declared that it was their purpose to "erect a free popular State" in the New World, whose people were to have "no government putte upon them but by their own consepte."

"A Democracy in a Republic" is based upon the expressions of a number of framers of the Constitution. It was expounded by James Madison in THE FEDERALIST, that great series of papers written to convince the American people that they should adopt the "more perfect Union" prepared by the Revolutionary leaders and embodied in the Constitution of the United States.

In a small community, all the people may gather and make their own laws, as in the old New England town meeting, but when a large number of communities are concerned, a free people express their will through the medium of their duly elected representatives. Representative democracy, under a republican form of government, to be successful and stable and strong, requires the maximum of training and self-control on the part of the people. If the people lack this self-control, they fail, and the government is seized by small groups of loud-promising men who use public power for their own selfish ends.

"A Sovereign Nation of Many Sovereign States." This expression is based upon the phrase "E pluribus unum" inscribed on the Great Seal of the United States and on our coins; it is also based upon the writings of the Founders of the Republic.

This is the most difficult matter, perhaps, for the foreigner to understand about the American plan of government. It is, as the Great Seal of the United States says, in Latin, a central Government made up of many smaller ones—a central government at Washington and forty-eight separate State Governments. The powers of these State Governments are held to be sacred or "sovereign" wherever they do not conflict with the good of all as represented in the central Government of the Nation, whose definite grants of power in the Constitution are derived from the people themselves. Under this plan the people of the United States were blessed for over 140 years in being able to live under local laws that suit local conditions.

"A Perfect Union" is taken from the Preamble to the Constitution. There, the Union then to be constructed on the basis of the Constitution is, prior to its adoption by the States, referred to as "a more perfect Union" for the reason that the previously existing Confederation which had carried the former colonies through the Revolution was found to be too full of weaknesses and imperfections for the practical solution of the even more difficult problems of peace.

"One and Inseparable" is a literal quotation taken from Daniel Webster's famous speech in the United States Senate, January 26, 1830.

The Union is "one and inseparable" because the people have determined that it is best for all the States to remain united, since, in this country, the people of the States are "governed by their own consent" through their duly-elected representatives. The United States Supreme Court expressed this thought when it declared, in 1868, that "The Constitution, in all its provisions, looks to an indestructible Union, composed of indestructible States."

"Established Upon Those Principles of Freedom, Equality, Justice and Humanity for Which American Patriots Sacrificed Their Lives and Fortunes" is adapted from the closing words of the Declaration of Independence, and is based upon the addresses and writings of American statesmen.

It has been said, with much truth, that "It is easier to die for cause or country than to live for it." In the first instance, one's life is offered for country or cause in a single supreme effort; in the second, one's life is given to one's country through long years of labor and sacrifice. America has ever been the home of practical idealists who, in every walk of life, have devoted their lives to public service. The patriots of peace, therefore, as those of war, from the beginning till now have, in equal measure, offered their "lives and fortunes" on behalf of the principles to which this Nation has been dedicated.

"I Therefore Believe It Is My Duty to My Country to Love It." There were so many expressions bearing upon this thought that it was difficult for me to make any selection. It was expressed, in substance, by Nathan Hale, when he said: "I only regret that I have but one life to give to my country"; by Stephen Decatur, by George Washington, and by many others; but it so happened that I had chiefly in mind the speech by the Revolutionary leader, John Hancock, of Massachusetts.

"To Support Its Constitution," is taken directly from the Oath of Allegiance which is required of all National and State officials. This oath reads:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion; and that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office upon which I am about to enter. So help me God."

"To Obey Its Laws" is founded upon recurrent expressions and admonitions in the course of the Farewell Address of George Washington as he was about to retire from the care of the Presidency of the young Republic into the quiet of private life. These are some of his words:

"Respect for its authority, compliance with its Laws, acquiescence in its measures, are duties enjoined by the fundamental maxims of true Liberty. The basis of our political system is the right of the people to make and alter their Constitutions of Government. But the Constitution which at any time exists, 'till changed by an explicit and authentic act of the whole People, is sacredly obligatory upon all. The very idea of the power and the right of the People to establish Government, presupposes the duty of every individual to obey the established Government."

"To Respect Its Flag." In civil life, this thought is brought to public attention especially during the playing, singing, or recitation of the National Anthem "The Star Spangled Banner," and in the pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. It is particularly emphasized in the Army and Navy Regulations, and, in detail, in the War Department Circular on Flag Etiquette, published during the World War.

"And to Defend It Against All Enemies." This thought is emphasized in the Oath of Allegiance which I repeated a few moments ago.

America has offered liberty and hope to all people. She has welcomed the peoples of other lands and given them a refuge from oppression. Only a few of these people have proved unworthy of her generous welcome and have abused her hospitality. For the most part, the rest have united their efforts with the best of the native Americans for their own good and for the good of the country of their adoption. Therefore, in a country which affords each one of us so great a degree of liberty, it is right and natural for every patriotic American citizen to declare the belief that: It is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution, the framework of the Nation; to obey its laws, which we ourselves make and change; to respect its flag, the symbol of the Republic; and to defend it against all enemies.

Never before in our history as a Nation has it been more necessary than at the present time to adhere to the underlying principles upon which this Republic was established and developed and which made it great.

It is my firm belief that by strict adherence to those principles and by adjusting ourselves to the will of the Divine Ruler of Men and of Nations the gloomy clouds of an economic depression will be dispersed and our land and people will again be restored to the favor of an All-Wise and Patient God who notes even the fall of a sparrow. How much more then will He clothe and feed us of so little faith?

Blount Mansion—"The Cradle of Tennessee"

Alice Smith Cates

Secretary, Blount Mansion Association; Historian, Bonny Kate Chapter, N. S. D. A. R.

MUCH has been written about the various "Shrines" throughout the country, but none is of more vital historic interest to the section in which it is located, and indeed to the entire nation, than the home of Governor William Blount who was appointed by General Washington on August 7, 1790, the "Governor of the Territory South of the River Ohio," out of which was formed the states of Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi.

He arrived from North Carolina at the home of William Cobb in the fork of the Holston and Watauga Rivers, on the 10th of October, later going further down the Holston to White's Fort, founded by his loyal friend, Gen. James White. The name was changed to Knoxville in honor of Gen. Henry Knox, Secretary of War in Washington's Cabinet.

Governor Blount's first abode in Knoxville was a log cabin on a little knoll not far from the river, but in 1792 he brought his family from North Carolina, and built at the corner of Hill and State streets, a frame dwelling, the first of its kind west of the Allegheny Mountains, and considered a splendid mansion at that time.

It was the social and political center of the Territory, and later of the new state of Tennessee. Men of rank and distinction were entertained within its walls, and even royalty itself visited here. An article of May 1, 1797, in the Gazette, Knoxville's oldest newspaper, relates: "Last Sunday arrived in town three sons of the Duke of Orleans, and yesterday set out on their journey to the Westward by Tellico, Fort Grainger, Nashville, etc."

A writer in an old Century magazine says: "During their stay in Knoxville, Louis Philippe and his two brothers were entertained at the home of Gov. Blount, and at the old Chisholm Tavern which is located directly behind the Blount home."

Knoxville was the seat of government for the territory south of the Ohio, and naturally became the seat of government for the state of Tennessee, so that "Blount Mansion" might be called the "Cradle of the State." The historian Ramsey says, "Tennessee looks back to Knoxville and recognizes her as the home of her youth, and the fond center of her hallowed recollections."

In restoring the Mansion, not only Knoxville, but all Tennessee rejoices in the preservation of the birthplace of the state, which the late John Trotwood Moore, state historian, pronounced "the most important historical spot in Tennessee."

Learning in 1925 that it would be razed for business purposes, Bonny Kate Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, undertook to save the place. The dedication of the East Room to its Regent, Miss Mary Boyce Temple, Vice-President General for

PORTRAIT OF GOV. WILLIAM BLOUNT

Tennessee, whose personal cheque held the option, bears testimony to the undertaking. When the William Blount Mansion Association was incorporated in October, 1926, and took over the debt and the management, she became its first president, and continued so until her death in 1929.

The house is of early American design, grooved clapboards, two stories, painted white, with dark green blinds, and surrounded by an old-fashioned garden.

Like many of the old-time houses, it has two entrances, the one on the left has double doors, hand-grooved, and admits to a small entry or hallway, while on the right is a large door with heavy brass knocker, which opens into a long hallway between the rooms.

Within, one is impressed with the size of the rooms, the hand-made mantel-pieces, chair-boards and wide paneled doors. The broad boards of North Carolina heart pine that form the walls of the hall and dining-room are very unusual.

The East Room or with-drawing room, as it was called in those days, was built seven years later than the original house. Its walls are of light buff plaster, with white doors and facings, and its high mantel-piece, grooved in diamond-shaped design, has an old Adam mirror above it. It was before this mantel that Barbara, daughter of the Governor, married Gen. Edmund Pendleton Gaines, who made Tennessee famous during the War of 1812, and was breveted Major-General and thanked by Congress. He was given a gold medal for his gallant defense of Fort Erie in 1814, a medallion of which is at the Mansion today, as well as a picture of General Gaines.

Upon the walls of the East Room hang splendid oil portraits of Gov. William Blount, Gov. Willie Blount, his half-brother, Gen. Henry Knox for whom Knoxville was named, Gov. John Sevier, first governor of Tennessee, and beautiful steel engravings of Louis Philippe, as a young boy, and one as King of France. About the room one finds the antique furniture of that period—among the most interesting being a large secretary-desk which belonged in the family of Thomas Jefferson, who signed the commission of Gov. Blount. A piece of thread lace from the dress of Barbara Blount is framed and hangs upon the wall.

Among other treasures in this room is a large and very handsome illuminated English Bible and Prayer-Book combined, dated 1751. A full-length silhouette of Charles McClung, who acquired this house from Blount, hangs on the wall. The windows contain fifteen panes of glass each, and are curtained with handsome English chintz. Above the doorways are tiny transoms which are unique. Just outside in the entry-way, hangs a picture of the Blount coat of arms.

The room adjoining is of generous proportions and was the bed-chamber. Here we find the same type of high mantel-piece and wainscoting, hand-grooved. The old-fashioned tester-bed with an original pine cradle beside it, occupies one side of the room, while across is the desk of Gov. John Sevier, upon which Dr. J. G. M. Ramsey, the historian, wrote "The Annals of Tennessee." Above the mantel hangs a large oil painting of "The Old Block House," done by Lloyd Branson, and on the opposite wall is a portrait of "Bonny Kate," second wife of Gov. John Sevier, done by the same artist.

An old chair belonging to John

Adair, Entry Taker of North Carolina, who built a fort above Knoxville for the protection of the pioneers, and an old time blanket-chest are interesting pieces of furniture. A picture of the old Blount silver service shows the elaborate design of the home of the Blounts in England embossed upon it, and gives evidence of the style and wealth of the family. The original is in the possession of one of the descendants.

In the hall-way stands a very old pine grandfather clock at the foot of the narrow stairs, which lead to the large bed-chamber above, where interesting pieces of furniture are found, among which is the cradle in which Admiral Farragut was rocked when a baby. He was born near Knoxville, and was one of Tennessee's most famous sons, and a national hero.

The dining-room or pine room is to the right of the hallway, and is the most admired of all the rooms, with its trestle table set with pewter, and the old Windsor chairs, placed around. The hunter's board with antique decanters and white china fruit dishes, the corner cupboards with china and handsome copper luster pieces, fascinate one. The high mantel-piece with open fire-place is very inviting. The Welsh dresser or hooded cupboard from the Smoky Mountains, with pewter arranged on its several shelves, is on one side of the room, while across is the low broad table holding an enormous turkey platter, with a huge white porcelain soup tureen—relic of by-gone days.

When the kitchen is completed, with its huge fire-place, with ovens and crane, and all the old-time cooking utensils, the old atmosphere of the place will return.

There is always a mystery about the secret stairs in every old house—Blount Mansion is no exception. One finds in the passage-way between the with-drawing room and the bed-chamber, a trap-door. When it is lifted, the steps appear. They follow the massive stone foundation of the chimney and lead to a lower room, where Governor Blount, according to tradition, held very special private meetings.

This room has been fire-proofed and turned into a museum, where glass cases contain many interesting exhibits of treasures that have belonged to the pioneer families of Tennessee. The room has been made a memorial to the late Mrs. Annie Washington Rapley, a descendant of the Blount family, by her son. She was Life Historian of Bonny Kate Chapter.

One of the treasured possessions of the Mansion is a very handsome hand-tooled leather volume bearing the names of the donors and memorials to this "Shrine." Another is the Guest Book in which over 25,000 visitors, prominent in this country and abroad, have registered since its restoration.

An outstanding event of patriotic importance held at the Mansion, was the celebration of the Bicentennial of Washington, who was the personal friend of Governor Blount, by having a wonderful Loan Collection of antiques which belonged to the contemporaries of Blount.

The place was declared free of debt on November 10, 1930. The house has been furnished throughout by the generosity of friends, and money obtained from the numerous benefits of Colonial exhibits and other entertainments given by the Blount Mansion Association.

In tracing the family of Blount, it has given birth to three distinct lines of peers—the Lords of Guisins in France, the Barons of Ixworth in Suffolk, and the Barons of Montjoy of Thurveston, County Derby, England.

The name was originally Le Blount. Sir Robert Le Blount and Sir William Le Blount, sons of Rudolph, Count of Guisins, accompanied William the Norman in his invasion of England in 1066.

DINING ROOM IN BLOUNT MANSION

Gov. William Blount was born in Bertie County, North Carolina, March 26, 1749, and married Mary Grainger, daughter of Col. Caleb Grainger of Wilmington. He died in Knoxville March 21, 1800, after a short illness. A marble slab marks his grave in the First Presbyterian Church-yard. His wife lies by his side under a similar stone.

Of the nine children of Governor Blount, six survived him. The only line living continuously in Knoxville and prominently identified with the growth of the city, is represented by Frederick A. Ault, who is the great-great-grandson of Mary Louisa Blount and Pleasant M. Miller. He married Mary Sanford, daughter of Col. E. J. Sanford of Knoxville.

The National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, records with sincere sorrow the death of Mrs. Sadie F. Earle, widow of Mr. Samuel Williams Earle, on March 19, 1935, in Winnetka, Illinois.

Mrs. Earle was long active in the Society, both as a member of Chicago Chapter, which she served as Regent, and as Recording Secretary General of the National Society, 1926-29. She is survived by her son, Edwin F. Earle. Funeral services were held in the Fourth Presbyterian Church and interment was in Oakwoods Cemetery.

The Seventeen Good Citizenship Pilgrims

HELENA BULLOCK

Chairman, Transportation Committee

"BEAUTY is only skin deep." I was never so convinced that the old adage was wrong, as when I saw my seventeen girls of the first Good Citizenship Pilgrimage at the Hotel Martinique, in Washington, D. C. They were brought to me, one by one, by their State Regents and they were so pretty, quiet and well bred.

So many girls nowadays go in for prizes in bathing beauty contests, movie contests, etc., that it is epoch-making to have girls win a prize for just being what they are. They do not even have to win it by some tour de force, like writing an essay. It is just what they are every day and all the time, as judged by the most merciless of judges, their fellow-students in school.

These girls are not from D. A. R. homes (some of them came to me and asked what you did to "earn a D. A. R.") and their first sight of our organization that Monday night (April 15), that the vast hall with its beautiful audience, was a breath-taking surprise.

They were thrilled, anyway, at the idea of being on the platform and there were great doings getting dressed, great swappings of dresses, shoes, accessories of all kinds.

Some of them came to me and asked if I thought the stores were still open. I replied: "I'm afraid not. It is seven o'clock, you know. What do you need? The drug stores are always open."

Well, no. Drug stores would not do. Another consultation, and they announced: "It's the Five and Ten' store we need. We just must find one."

"Oh, I'm sure they are not open. What is it you require?"

"Well, you see we haven't any jewelry to wear tonight. We do so want to get to the 'Five and Ten' and buy some!"

"You don't need any jewelry. Don't you know the Junior League girls do not wear jewelry until they are married, and very little then. Only older women wear jewelry. It is lovely with gray hair, and you will see lots of beautiful gray hair, and beautiful jewels to go with it, tonight."

As they gathered in my room just before starting, one girl studied her face in the glass and said: "If I had lipstick I'd put some on. Has any one a lipstick?" The article was not forthcoming for none had it!

After their departure the hotel chambermaid, working in my room, spoke of the girls and said the hotel had never had such a nice group; that they had made their beds and put their rooms in order every morning (they were four in a room, you know, and five in one room); no powder and cigarette ashes to clean up, the bane of a chambermaid's life.

The hotel thought it was a school and that I was the principal. This amused us all immensely. The Martinique specializes in such groups. "There is another school coming today," they would tell me. "Ninety-six girls and five nuns." And another day a mixed group, both boys and girls. My seventeen were satisfied not to be in either of these groups.

I was always "counting noses," and they would cover them with their purses so I "couldn't count 'em." It was my nightmare that I would lose one. I had warned them that if they got lost or separated in a crowd, to take a taxi and say Hotel Martinique; that they would not even require money, as the doorman would pay the taxi and put it on my bill.

And then I did lose two! After the Vesper Service in the Washington Cathedral Sunday afternoon when we were all in the bus to come home, I discovered I had only fifteen noses! New York and Iowa were missing. I permitted the girls to go in search of the missing ones, sending them out two by two, like Noah and his Ark, until none were left. Pretty soon they reported back and the bus was full again, but still only fifteen noses. It was growing late, so I decided to go to the hotel; probably the girls were there; if not, I would take a taxi and return to the Cathedral.

When on my way to my room I met the two missing "noses" coming down to apologize, looking rather scared.

"That's all right," I said, "you did just as I told you, and reached here without misadventure. Hurry in to dinner, for tonight we leave early to go to the Library of Congress and see the Declaration of Independence, and other treasures." Then, as they brightened, I added: "But don't think you are going to get off easily. We will hold a trial and decide what punishment to mete out to you for keeping us waiting so long."

I thought nothing more about the matter, but when I went to see them off in the bus, I overheard some of them talking. "Yes. When we get back we are going to hold a trial, and put them under the shower five times!"

I didn't want that going on so I turned and said, "That's a grand idea. We will have the trial in my room, and I'll be the judge. Upon your return come to my room. Have two policemen for each culprit. They may choose a lawyer for their defense, and we will appoint a prosecuting attorney."

Then I made my preparations. I stopped at the office and bought candy, and put it in a big box cover. In my room I arranged the two beds to hold the spectators, cleared off the desk and pulled it in front of the mirror for the prisoners, put a cushion on top of the wardrobe trunk for the judge to sit upon, put on a dark velvet negligee, and a small zipper bag for a cap, used my mirror as a mace, and was ready for them when they filed in. They put two thin black coats backwards on the defendants, and sat them on the desk. We ruled that the candy must be kept in circulation, and that any girl who was found with it near her had to get drinks of water for any and all who raised their hands. The trial went on in gales of laughter.

The prosecuting attorney: "You say you could not find the bus?" "No. We could not find it." "But you did find a taxi?" "Yes, we found a taxi." "But the bus is bigger than the taxi."

They were found guilty, and a suitable punishment meted out by the judge (not the shower), when it was suddenly found that the candy was sidetracked beside Texas, and she had to supply five girls with water. One girl said: "This has a funny taste. Texas has put something in it. Texas has put soap in it." A great commotion and Texas was arrested, the black coat donned and she was put in the dock. The prosecuting attorney wrung a confession from her, but her defense lawyer brought out that she did it in the interest of all concerned; so many girls having had a drink from the silver cup, she was afraid it was full of germs. That Ivory soap, being 99 and 99/100 pure, it could not help but purify the cup!

"But," argued the prosecuting attorney, "in washing the soap into the cup many more germs would get into the water from your hands."

"But I did not do it that way. I held the soap between my thumb and finger, and let the water from the faucet run over the other end of the cake and into the cup."

I regarded Texas thoughtfully. It was my bathroom, of course, and I knew there was no Ivory soap there. Just one big, round, pink ball of soap that I always carry with me. Texas was found guilty, and the punishment was meted out by the judge, that she should drink a full cup of her own concoction. Two girls retired to the bathroom to prepare the dose. The two policemen held Necco wafers over Texas' eyes, instead of a bandage, and the cup was brought out. I beckoned to the two girls to bring it to me. It was as I had expected, crystal clear and pure, no soap in it at all. Texas found it a hard dose to take but finally managed to drain the cup, and insisted it tasted terrible! Our merry party broke up and I sent them to bed shortly after ten o'clock.

I had not expected when I undertook my "guardianship" that it would be so hard to give it up. We were together only four days, but they were very full ones, and friendships ripen fast when every minute of the day is spent together. When Tuesday afternoon was actually upon us and we had to face parting, we found it hard. The girls were thrilled to have made friends from such distances—Tennessee and Maine, Michigan and North Carolina, New York and Alabama. What a difference it will make in their lives!

STATE CONFERENCES

ALABAMA

The Thirty-seventh Annual State Conference of Alabama Daughters of the American Revolution was held March 12, 13 and 14, 1935, in the Albert Hotel, Selma. Cola Barr Craig and Cherokee Chapters were co-hostesses, with Mrs. Frank Gaines as general chairman. C. A. R. members served as pages. This conference, one of the largest held in Alabama, was presided over by our State Regent, Mrs. Val Taylor, of Uniontown.

Tuesday, March 12, was registration day. At two o'clock the Board of Management convened and at 3 P. M. the State Officers' Club met. The club presented newly printed minutes of 1898-1930. These minutes had been preserved by our beloved Kate Duncan Smith in longhand.

At 4:30 the Officers' Club dedicated a bronze tablet in honor of General Lafayette. This tablet was presented to Selma by Mrs. Watt T. Brown, president of the club. It was accepted by City Attorney Winston E. Brown. The afternoon address was made by P. M. Munroe, superintendent of public schools. He disclosed new and interesting data on the brief visit of the famous Frenchman to Selma. The Officers' Club banquet was held at 6 P. M. in the Parish House.

At 8 P. M. there was the usual colorful processional led by the state regent and state officers. Mrs. Val Taylor then declared the conference open. The invocation was given by the state chaplain, Miss Melissa Wyman of Tuscaloosa. The Salute to the Flag and American's Creed were given and "America" was sung.

An address of welcome was given by the Mayor's wife in his absence from the city. The response was by the state vice-regent, Mrs. E. A. Richey. The "Good Citizenship Girl," Carrie Flowers of Ward, was presented by Dr. J. A. Keller, state superintendent of education. The guest speaker, Dr. O. C. Carmichael, president of Alabama College, spoke on "The Modern Demands of Citizenship." Greetings were brought from the S. A. R., C. A. R. and ex-state regents. This was followed by an informal reception in the Parish House parlors.

Wednesday morning the regents enjoyed a Dutch Treat breakfast with round-table discussions on chapter work.

At 8:30 the business session began with reports from officers and chairmen of all state committees. An unusual treat to members and visitors was a lecture with colored slides of Kenmore, given by Mrs. H. H. Smith, secretary, Kenmore association. Luncheon followed, given by the hostess chapters.

Reports were continued in the afternoon. Memorial services were held for those members who had died during the past year.

Delightful hospitality was extended by the United Daughters of the Confederacy at a tea on Wednesday afternoon from 5 to 6 at the Y. M. C. A.

Wednesday evening was "Regents' Night" and the hostess chapters served a buffet supper at 7 o'clock. At the business session honor ribbons were presented to the regents who had followed the "card of excellence." Two silver vases, donated by Idel King Sorsby, were offered for the best Alabama Day program. The first vase was won by the Mobile Chapter, Virginia Cavalier, and the second vase was given to the Peter Forney Chapter of Montgomery.

A clever and much-enjoyed musical program was presented by four little children from the Kate Duncan Smith School.

Thursday morning, March 14, chapters placed old gold in a box for the Memory Book in Washington, D. C.

Motion was made and carried that the Alabama flag be made to conform in size to all other state flags.

Resolutions were presented at the closing session. In these resolutions the members assumed new work along constructive lines for the progress of chapters, the state and the national organization.

GERTRUDE WORTHINGTON-JEFFRIES,
Publicity Chairman.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

The Thirty-third Annual State Conference of the New Hampshire Daughters of the American Revolution was held at the Carpenter Hotel, Manchester, October 16 and 17, 1934, Molly Stark Chapter acting as hostess.

The meetings were held in the auditorium of the hotel, opening Tuesday morning with a procession of national and state officers, headed by the National, State and D. A. R. flags borne by white-clad pages.

After the Call to Order by the state regent, Mrs. Arthur F. Wheat, the invocation was given by the state chaplain, Mrs. John S. Shepard; followed by the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag and the American's Creed, led by the state vice-regent. Singing of "America" followed, after which addresses of welcome were given by Hon. Damase Caron, mayor of Manchester, and

Mrs. Ferdinand B. Edgerly, regent of Molly Stark Chapter, to which the state vice-regent, Mrs. Carl S. Hoskins, responded. Greetings were brought by Mrs. William A. Becker, national chairman, National Defense Committee embodying Patriotic Education, and Mrs. Edward D. Storrs, director of New Hampshire C. A. R.

Reading of the minutes by the state secretary, Miss Mary J. Wellington, was followed by the reports of the state officers, showing a small loss in membership, but splendid work done by the state's thirty-seven chapters. The state historian, Mrs. John Driscoll, had offered a D. A. R. History Medal to the chapter historian submitting the best 500-word article on "The Most Interesting Cemetery in My Vicinity," and the medal was presented to Mrs. Wendell Burt Folsom of Exeter on her article "The Winter Street Cemetery, Exeter"; honorable mention was given to Miss Adella

THE STATE REGENT OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, MRS. WHEAT; MRS. WILLIAM A. BECKER, NATIONAL CHAIRMAN, NATIONAL DEFENSE COMMITTEE, MRS. EDGERLY AND MAYOR CARON.

R. Goodrich of Nashua on "The Old South Burying-Ground, Nashua."

Appointment of committees preceded the beautiful "Service of Remembrance" conducted by the state chaplain, Mrs. Shepard, assisted by the state registrar, Mrs. Charles D. Howard. Solos before and after the service by Miss Vera Oxner, added to the solemnity of the occasion.

The afternoon session opened with a piano prelude, report of Credential Committee and chapter roll call. Mrs. Harry C. Sanborn, honorary state regent, gave a report of her last six months' work, and the state regent gave a résumé of her work since April. Reports of the state chairmen, a group of songs by Miss Oxner, and a few chapter regents' reports closed the afternoon session.

From four to six o'clock, Molly Stark Chapter tended the Daughters a delightful reception and tea at the home of Mrs. Edward B. Stearns.

That night nearly two hundred sat down to a banquet at the hotel, at which time an address was given by Mrs. Becker. Music by Mrs. Proctor Hoitt added much to the evening's enjoyment.

Wednesday morning a board meeting was held, followed by the closing session of the Conference. Devotions were led by the state chaplain, Mrs. Shepard, and the Salute to the Flag was given. Chapter reports limited to three minutes were given by twenty-six regents. An address on "Lafayette as New Hampshire Knew Him" was given by Mr. Stephen Decatur of Portsmouth. A final report by the Credential Committee showed 235 registered, 8 state officers, 2 honorary vice-presidents general, 5 honorary state regents, 26 regents and 161 members. The Budget Committee brought in the usual recommendations, including $75 to the Kearsarge Mountain project. Courtesy resolutions were passed, the colors were retired, and one of the best State Conferences in the annals of New Hampshire passed into history.

State Historian.

OHIO

The Ohio State Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution held its Thirty-sixth Conference at Hotel Cleveland from March 11-March 14, and 500 officers, delegates and alternates registered.

Mrs. Russell William Magna, President General, and Mrs. Pouch, chairman of Approved Schools, were our honored guests.

Though the Conference was not officially called together till Tuesday night, all kinds of committee meetings were called for Monday morning, and in the afternoon the State Board meeting took place, immediately followed by the annual meeting of the State Officers' Club and its election.

The purchase of a rug for the Ohio room in Memorial Continental Hall was authorized, and a gift of $100 was given toward the debt on Constitution Hall.

On Monday evening the 11th annual dinner of the State Officers Club was held, afterwards a little skit called "The Antique Shop" was given by Cleveland Daughters, and this was followed by a group of professional musicians who gave "The Kitchen Orchestra." It was very funny and splendidly rendered.

Tuesday morning there were more committee meetings, and in the afternoon the five local chapters joined in entertaining the visiting Daughters at a most delightful tea. The hostesses were all gowned in Colonial costumes. The arrival of Mrs. Magna and Mrs. Pouch, by plane, in time for the tea surprised and pleased us all very much.

Tuesday evening the Conference was formally called to order by Mrs. Asa Messenger, state regent. The processional was truly beautiful, with the state regent leading, followed by our honor guests, officers and committee chairmen. The music throughout the Conference was local talent, and talent to be proud of!

The Conference was welcomed by Mrs. Margaret Sharer, regent of Shaker Chapter, and Mrs. William M. Wilson, honorary state regent, responded in her usual clever way.

Our President General's address was delivered convincingly. She spoke of the final payment of the debt on Constitution Hall being paid by the last of March; urged that the youth of the day be trained to helpful citizenship, and called for adequate national defense.

Following Mrs. Magna's address the state regent gave her report, as did the state vice-regent, and other state officers.

The following morning, after the Flag Salute and devotional services, the Conference settled down to hard work. The treasurer's report was read and, much to our gratification, we did NOT appear in the RED, and had been 100 per cent in all national undertakings. Naturally in these years of depression we have had to be careful, but the officers and chairmen have borne their own expenses and helped in that way. Then came reports of the five district chairmen. Once more our President General gave us a stirring talk.

Following her appeal for Constitution Hall one after another rose to her feet, making personal or chapter pledges. They were small amounts, but totaled over $500!

Mrs. Pouch very graciously allowed part of her time to be taken in this way, Mrs. Magna paying five dollars for taking the time, and Mrs. Pouch another five toward the debt. It was all very exciting.

Mrs. Pouch gave us a splendid talk on our mountain schools, illustrated by slides. A representative of Schaufller School was given a short time to speak and President McCleland of Lincoln Memorial University was given time in the afternoon session.

The election was slated then, too, so after the formal opening the districts were called one by one to leave the meeting and cast their votes. During this time the chairmen of the state committees gave their reports. After the session was over the result of the election was posted: State Regent, Mrs. John S. Heaume, of Springfield; State Vice-

Regent, Mrs. James F. Donahue, Shaker Heights; Secretary, Mrs. Earl Paget, Gallion; Treasurer, Miss Esther Chance, Fostoria; Historian, Mrs. J. P. Haynes, Ashland; Registrar, Mrs. E. H. Johnson, Gambier; Librarian, Miss Alice Boardman, Columbus; Chaplain, Mrs. W. I. Hadley, Toledo. District Chairmen: N. W., Mrs. Homer Heath, Toledo; S. W., Mrs. A. H. Dunham, Dayton; S. E., Mrs. O. D. Daily, Athens; N. E., Mrs. J. S. Cotton, Cuyahoga Falls; Central, Miss Amanda Thomas.

Wednesday evening our state banquet occurred, the state regent presiding. Shaker Chapter certainly outdid itself in the beautiful floral decorations, and the banquet was on a par with all of the others. After the banquet we were entertained by several piano numbers, rendered by one of Cleveland's famous pianists, then two readings, which everyone enjoyed, and following these we listened to "Songs of Long Ago" sung by a picked quartet, all in Colonial costume.

Thursday morning old and new business, of interest to Ohio only, was attended to and then we listened to the reports of the Regents.

At 11:20 all reports of regents, who had been able to remain for this last meeting, had been read. After a few remarks by our outgoing regent, and many resolutions of thanks for those who had so beautifully entertained us, the 36th Conference of Ohio was declared closed.

The Payne Family

RUTH P. SUTHERLAND

THE Payne family is of Norman-English descent and is of ancient origin. It had its beginning in Normandy, France. The Paynes of England are descendants of these Norman Lords. The name is in Doomsday Book which was compiled by order of William the Conqueror in 1081; they are also mentioned in the Country Gentry of England.

The first Payne whose given name is known was Hugh de Paen. His father was a great friend of William the Conqueror. Hugh went on the crusades to the Holy Land and was knighted for his bravery.

In the first land charter granted to a company in 1609 the brothers John and William Payne were specially mentioned. In 1620 they came to America, having been knighted by King James I before leaving England.

Sir William Payne settled in Maryland; he never married.

Sir John Payne settled in what was then known as Fairfax County, Virginia, in 1620. His son, Sir William Payne (born Aug. 10, 1671, died Aug. 24, 1776) married Alicia — (died Oct. 31, 1760). Their children were: Edward (born Nov. 18, 1726, died May 17, 1806) married Feb. 27, 1749, Lady Ann Holland Conyers (born Aug. 23, 1728, died —); William (born July 31, 1724, died July 12, 1782) married Feb. 3, 1748, Susannah Clark (born Dec. 17, 1721, died Feb. 22, 1771); Sanford.

After the death of his wife, Alicia, Sir William Payne at the age of 92 married Ann Jennings, Mar. 1, 1763. She was born Feb. 28, 1740, died May 11, 1827.

Children of Sir William and Ann Payne were: John (born Apr. 8, 1764, died Sept. 9, 1837) married June 28, 1787, Betsey Johnson (born 1772, died 1845). She was the daughter of Robert and Jemima Suggett Johnson and sister of Richard M. Johnson, Vice-President of the United States. Mildred married M. Riley.

The children of Edward and Ann Holland Conyers Payne were: Theodosia, born Jan. 18, 1751, married Lewis E. Turner; Henry, born Jan. 26, 1753, married Ann Lane; William, born Mar. 21, 1755, married (1) Malinda Grimes, (2) Miss Grimes, (3) Mildred Harrison; Elizabeth, born Mar. 7, 1757, married Thomas Lewis; Sanford, born Aug. 7, 1751, married Ellender Keen; Edward, born Jan. 7, 1762, married Elizabeth Howard; Daniel McCarty, born Nov. 3, 1674, never married; Jilson, born Mar. 3, 1767, married Dulcenia Harrison.

The children of William and Susannah Clark Payne were: Alicia (born Dec. 17, 1749, died Feb. 27, 1837) married Giles Cooke, Nov. 3, 1775; William (born Feb. 19, 1751, died Dec. 23, 1813) married Polly Robinson July 25, 1777; Mary (born Feb. 23, 1753, died —) married Pearce Bagley, Feb. 23, 1772; Benjamin Clark (born Dec. 28, 1755, died Apr. 25, 1789) married Jane Campbell, Dec. 24, 1778; Penelope (born Dec. 7, 1757, died Aug. 2, 1789) married Capt. George West; Ann (born July 4, 1759, died May 5, 1788) married Capt. Tom West; Duval (born Jan. 3, 1764, died —) married Hannah Brent Dec. 15, 1785; Leah, married Mr. Fitzhugh. (She was the grandmother of Robert E. Lee.)

Sanford Payne, son of Sir William and Alicia Payne, made a will in Fairfax County and Parish of Truro in the State of Virginia April 7, 1787, in which he mentions his wife Abigail Payne and his eight children as follows: Benjamin, George, Salley, Lishyea, Ann, Hellen, Sanford, and Ginney. He also mentions his youngest child as being under fourteen. Witnesses to the will are: Wm. Deneale, Lewis Pritchard, Wm. Simpson and Esaias Horseman. Sanford Payne's will was presented for probate in the County of Fairfax Dec. 17, 1792.

The census of 1790 gives as follows: Sanford Payne—1782, Fairfax County, Va. (Tax Collector John Gibson) 9 white souls —5 black.

In 1785—Sanford Payne, Fairfax (Tax Collector Wm. Payne) 9 whites—5 blacks.

Abigail Payne, wife of Sanford Payne, died in 1799.

The children of John and Betsey Johnson Payne were: Asa (born Mar. 19, 1788, died July 10, 1887) married Theodosia Turner; Robert married Maria Williams; Nancy married Charles Thomson; John married Mary Stevenson; Betsey married Uriel Seebree; Newton married Louisa Nuchols; Wm. J. died in infancy; Thomas Jefferson married Latitia Thompson; Franklin married Polly Rogers; Richard; Cyrus; Emeline married James Peak.

Henry Payne, eldest son of Sir Edward and Lady Ann Holland Conyers Payne, sold the manorial estate in Virginia in 1785 and settled near Lexington, Kentucky.

The coat of arms of the Payne family was two lions passant on a silver ground; their crest—a lion's jamb erect holding a broken tilted spear; and their motto Malo mori quam foedari ("I would rather die than be disgraced").

Many of the descendants of Sir William Payne have been men and women of prominence in the United States.

The names and date of the above article were taken from "The Payne Family," a history compiled by Jno. T. Viley of Fayette County, Kentucky. The names of the wife and children of Sanford Payne are copied from his will which is recorded in Liber F. No. 1, page 196 of the Will Books of Fairfax County, Virginia. The data of the census of 1790 is from the United States Census Dept., Washington, D. C.

Oct. 21, 1824—Philip Cress, age 68, served under Capt. William Hutchinson and in Gen. Sumpters brigade for ten months. At the battle of Eutaw Springs discharged by Gen. Sumpter himself at the High Hills of Santee. Enlisted for nine months.

An affidavit signed by Lt. Archibald McCurdy testifies to this man's service.

July 20, 1824—Phillip Shipe, age 68. Enlisted 1776 in Capt. Gear's 6th Penn. commanded by Col. Edwin, for one year, discharged from 7th Regt. of Penn. troops Feb., 1780. Enlisted second under Capt. Shaffenor belonging to the corps of Dragoons commanded by Col. Ormong during the War in March, 1780. Taken prisoner in S. C. at the defeat of Gen. Gates, Aug. 11, 1780.

These were taken from the minute docket, and we also found the name Phillip Shive but we are under the impression that he is the same man as Phillip Shipe. David Fink died soon after he made his application. His son Solomon was made Adm.

The Chaplain General, Mrs. E. Thomas Boyd, read from Deut. I: 17-29-30 and offered the following prayer:

O God, eternal in the heavens, by the power of Thy might lift us we pray Thee to Thy presence; Thou to whom nothing is impossible grant us that perfect courage which comes only from Thee, the infinite source of all power and might, so that we may meet whatever comes with serenity and peace. Grant that we never fail to think brave thoughts, to speak brave words and do brave deeds. Enable us to manifest in all our work in the years before us sweetness of spirit, nobility of character, freedom and joy of faith in Thy guidance, never doubting that having led us thus far Thou wilt lead us to the end. The Lord bless us and keep us, the Lord make His face to shine upon us, and be gracious unto us both now and forever. Amen.

MAY A. TOMM,
Librarian General.

The Curator General, Mrs. Robert J. Reed, asked the cooperation of the members in continuing to fill the Museum with lovely antiques and relics.

The President General announced the appointment of the following as members of the Executive Committee: Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge, Secretary; Mrs. Henry M. Robert, Jr., Mrs. Julian G. Goodhue, Mrs. Robert J. Reed, Mrs. Lue Reynolds Spencer, Mrs. William H. Pouch, Mrs. Luther E. Tomm. Finance Committee: Mrs. Robert J. Reed, Chairman; Auditing Committee: Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge, Chairman; Printing Committee: Mrs. Henry M. Robert, Jr., Chairman.

The Chair reminded the members of the adoption of the resolution, Approved Schools Scholarship Committee, by the Congress, and the Recording Secretary General read the resolution:

WHEREAS, A sum of over $2,000 was raised at a benefit performance sponsored by the Approved Schools Committee, National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution of the Northern and Eastern Divisions, given in the New Amsterdam Theatre in New York City on April 8; and

WHEREAS, The purpose of this benefit was three-fold:

1. To bring the pupils and schools on the approved and reserve lists of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, to the attention of the public at large.

2. To give information regarding the educational work in which the Daughters of the American Revolution are interested.

3. To establish a scholarship fund for the use of the schools on the approved and reserve lists of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution; therefore

Resolved, That the sum realized by the benefit performance be administered by the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, with the understanding that it shall be the nucleus of a National Scholarship Fund to be used by and in the schools on the approved and reserve lists:

Resolved, That the disbursing of the fund be under the control of a committee of five members to be known as the Approved Schools Scholarship Committee and to function as an integral part of the Approved Schools Committee;

Resolved, That the Forty-fourth Continental Congress recommend that the President General, the Treasurer General and the National Chairman of the Approved Schools Committee be members of this committee, and that for three years the two additional members of the committee be the General Chairman of the Approved Schools Benefit Committee and the Benefit Treasurer, who served in New York, and who are now responsible for the funds secured through the benefit.

The President General announced the appointment of Mrs. William H. Pouch, who had really carried on that benefit in a most magnificent way, and Miss Page Schwarzwelder as the two additional members of the committee.

Mrs. Pouch displayed a program of the benefit given in New York, stating she felt the reason for giving the performance had been fully justified by the enthusiastic attendance; that people came from far and near; and urged the members to carry enthusiastic reports of this work into the states so that the fund might become a national fund for use in this wonderful work.

Mrs. Mauldin of S. C. expressed appreciative thanks that Mrs. Pouch had representatives of Tamassee taking part in the benefit, thus bringing that school to the attention of the country.

Discussion followed as to the proportion of help given each school and the desirability of Tamassee and Kate Duncan Smith Schools being assured of a definite sum on which to depend, and the Chair stated that a suggestion had been made to give $1,000 yearly to Tamassee and Kate Duncan Smith Schools from the current fund of the National Society. This was something which needed consideration.

The Advertising Director of the Magazine, Mrs. Puryear, brought the greetings of the Editor, Miss Natalie Sumner Lincoln, and regret that she could not be present; and reminded the members that the customary $400 for the purchase of articles would be needed. Mrs. Puryear stated that during the Congress they had taken in $143.40 in subscriptions and $27.20 for single copies of the magazine, and urged those not having subscribed to do so before leaving Washington as she felt by the support of every State Regent and National Officer the Magazine would be such a success as to surpass them.

Miss Harman of D. C. moved That the usual $400 be appropriated for the purchase of articles for the D. A. R. Magazine. Seconded by Mrs. Bailey, Miss Street. Carried.

The Recording Secretary General, Mrs. Talmadge, moved That the customary gifts of money be given to the United States Service Bands, to the Firemen and Police Funds for the services rendered during the 44th Continental Congress. Seconded by Mrs. Pouch. Carried.

Mrs. Puryear explained in detail the rates of advertising and the need of sympathetic constructive interest in procuring the larger ads from firms furnishing expensive facilities for the home and office buildings, and also being willing to tell others that they have these apparatus in use.

The Recording Secretary General, Mrs. Talmadge, moved That a vote of gratitude be given Mrs. Puryear for her remarkable success with the Magazine. Seconded by Mrs. Pouch. Carried by a rising vote.

Mrs. Talmadge moved That a message of love and appreciation be sent Miss Lincoln by this Board. Seconded by Mrs. Pouch. Carried.

Discussion followed on the subject of names and activities of committees and the Chair stated the history work would need but one chairman in the State to take care of that work, under the Historian General; that the D. A. R. Library Committee had been discontinued; that the D. A. R. Good Citizenship Committee would be included in the committees for the coming year. It was the consensus of opinion that history work would be under the Historical Research Committee.

The President General asked the wish of the members in regard to continuing the Vice Chairmen of different committees, and the Treasurer

General, Mrs. Robert, explained the reasons given during hearings before the Resolutions Committee of the Congress on the subject of appointments of Vice Chairmen in connection with the preparation of programs planned to educate the membership in different phases of the work of the National Society; and many suggestions were offered as to the use of different resources readily available, such as the Filing and Lending Bureau, etc.

The President General announced that Donald Abeel Phelan had won the award offered by the Daughters of the American Revolution, and this year it would, by request, be a sabre, and invited the members to attend the ceremonies of presentation during graduation week at West Point; and that a sabre would be given a Midshipman at Annapolis on the first Thursday in June, the day before graduation, and invited the members to be present.

The Curator General, Mrs. Reed, moved That a D. A. R. Handbook of Information be issued by the National Society. Seconded by Mrs. Pouch. Carried.

Discussion followed as to the advisability of discontinuing the reading of State Regents' reports during the Congress, and it was the consensus of opinion that the State Regents do the work of the organization and their reports were a source of inspiration and that the lovely ceremony of State Regents' evening should be continued.

After discussion, the Chair announced there would not be a regular Board meeting in June, and that the date of the next regular Board meeting would be October 16, 1935.

After discussion on the subject of changing the name of the Filing and Lending Historical Papers including Patriotic Lectures and Lantern Slides Committee, the Librarian General, Mrs. Tomm, moved That the name of the Filing and Lending Historical Papers, including Patriotic Lectures and Lantern Slides Committee be changed to the Filing and Lending Bureau. Seconded by Mrs. Reed. Carried.

Mrs. Turner of Texas extended an invitation to attend the ceremonies of the Texas Centennial in 1936, celebrating its independence from Mexico.

The Recording Secretary General, Mrs. Talmadge, read announcements and letters, among them a letter received from Mr. S. Edwin Earle, son of the late Mrs. Samuel Williams Earle, former Recording Secretary General, thanking the National Board for its letter of condolence.

The Organizing Secretary General, Mrs. Pouch, read a supplemental report.

Supplemental Report of Organizing Secretary General

My supplemental report is as follows: The State Regent of Louisiana requests Chapters be authorized at the following places: Minden, Mansfield, Metre-Ridge, Plaquemine and Donaldsonville.

HELENA R. POUCH,
Organizing Secretary General.

Mrs. Pouch moved the acceptance of the supplemental report of the Organizing Secretary General. Seconded by Mrs. Spencer. Carried.

The Recording Secretary General, Mrs. Talmadge, read the minutes of April 22, 1935, which were approved as read.

The President General gave the following message: Our debt on Constitution Hall has been a uniting force for nearly a decade. Energies now released from that splendid achievement must be utilized constructively. The life of an organization lies in its committee work. Each committee has undreamed of possibilities for development, and each functions chiefly in the community. As no chain is stronger than its weakest link, let us build up this committee work in unison with the plan of the whole. The Daughters of the American Revolution holds a position quite distinct from any other Society. It has the opportunity of directing the energies of people who differ widely in many ways, but who are united in fundamental purpose.

Let us not lose sight of that purpose through magnifying any trivialities. As a living organism we must continue to grow, we must interest youth and bring the next generation within our fold. Youth is reaching out for ideals. Let us keep before him those ideals expressed in the Declaration of Independence and organized in the Constitution of the United States. As your President General I am here to serve you. Come to me at any time with your thoughts, your problems, your plans. Nothing is too unimportant to receive my earnest consideration. We will go forward together—in large things, unity; in lesser things, tolerance; in all things, charity.

Adjournment was taken at 12 P. M.

MAY ERWIN TALMADGE,
Recording Secretary General.
